21. Are you interested in a specific dog or any other comments that would help us match you to a dog?

Which of the following ONE choice best describes your dog ownership philosophy and household style?

1. ___ All a dog needs is love to be happy. Our dog will be pampered in every way possible and showered with love, treats and every luxury we can afford. Our dog belongs sleeping on the couch or in bed with us. If our dog displays inappropriate behavior to another, we will avoid those situations in the future. We don't believe in correcting a dog, only in giving positive rewards. We mostly want a couch potato companion.

2. ___ Dogs need lots of love and playtime, mixed with a few boundaries, and training in house manners and tricks. We want our dog to be part of the family and fit into our lifestyle and routine as it is without many changes at this time. We are willing to take a few classes and take our dog on daily walks or to the dog park for exercise and play-time. We would seek training advice if we couldn't solve a behavior issue, but we don't want a dog with serious issues. We like taking our dog with us on family activities and want a family dog.

3. ___ Dogs need structure, leadership, training and affection to be happy and well-balanced. We believe in firm rules, order and appropriate discipline. Inappropriate behavior is never acceptable and is corrected immediately. Good behavior is rewarded with praise, affection, playtime or whatever works for the dog. Excellent house manners and obedience training are a must, and we have the time and skills to complete the training ourselves.

4. ___ Dogs need vigorous daily exercise, structure, and a job, and don't belong just lounging around a backyard or the house all day. Dogs need to understand that humans are the leaders without exception! Excellent manners and obedience are a must, and we spend many hours in a variety of physically and mentally stimulating training, with firm rules, appropriate discipline, rewards and affection. Behavior problems are never allowed to develop, as they are the fault of the humans. Dogs ARE our lifestyle, either competing in dog sports or working with them every day. We take our dogs everywhere we go with us so they must be well-behaved in all circumstances.

The average cost of caring for our dogs, including shelter fees, spaying/neutering, veterinary care, boarding and feeding, exceeds $400 per dog. We ask for a minimum adoption fee of $350 for puppies 6 months and under, $300 for adult dogs, and $100 for Special Needs dogs to cover these costs, and we appreciate any additional donation you may be able to make to help us save more dogs. We are a 501(c)(3) non-profit, all-volunteer group.

We thank you for your interest in adopting one of our German Shepherds!
